

Such mission critical applications are not viable unless the confidence in the source and integrity of data is extremely high.

Trust begins with knowing the source of a piece of data and being able to verify that the data, you would base your decisions on, is exactly what that source sent.